

Patricia Buffler Rooftop Terrace

Help us build a green space to honor a beloved member of the UC Berkeley School of Public Health Community.

On September 26, 2013, the public health community lost Professor Patricia Buffler. In recognition of the impact she had at UC Berkeley as well as on the world of epidemiology, the Buffler Family established The Patricia A. Buffler Memorial Fund in 2013, with the idea to do something special for the School in Patricia's honor. That opportunity presented itself in 2015.

The School of Public Health has broken ground on a new building, to be completed in late 2017, which we hope will include a beautifully landscaped rooftop terrace on the fifth floor.

Patricia always believed in the importance of creating an open and fun environment that promotes community and collaboration. Therefore, in remembrance of her spirit, we want to create a much needed outdoor space for students, staff, faculty, and guests for the School of Public Health to rest, reflect, share, and socialize as a community.

With your help this space will become the Patricia Buffler Rooftop Terrace. Funds raised will be used for finishing and landscaping the space.

Your generous gift to the Patricia A. Buffler Memorial Fund will help us create and name this space to honor a woman, friend, and colleague who meant so much to so many.

Remembering Patricia Buffler

Patricia Buffler began her distinguished 22-year tenure at UC Berkeley in 1991, when she joined the faculty as professor of epidemiology and dean of the School of Public Health. Throughout her career Patricia was regarded as an internationally esteemed researcher in environmental health. She led several large research programs related to childhood and adolescent cancers, particularly leukemia. She was a dedicated teacher and served the UC Berkeley community in numerous capacities.

As much as Patricia was admired and respected, she was adored for the way she mentored and advised junior faculty, colleagues, and students at the School of Public Health. She loved her work, and her students most of all. When Patricia wasn't traveling the world working, collaborating with colleagues, and presenting her research, she relished enjoying wine with friends, sharing her affinity for art and jewelry with everyone, and making a loving home for her husband, children, and grandchildren.
